TECHNOLOGY WEBINAR

Save Your Family History

BY LOUISE ROBBINS, MEMBER, ELECTRONIC TECHNOLOGY COMMITTEE

If you are like many Wisconsinites, your family history is gradually moving from analog (photographs, letters, keepsakes) to digital (websites, social-media accounts, files in the cloud). Attend this webinar with Dorothea Salo to learn how you can ensure that digital family history doesn't disappear in a cloud of pixels.

Salo's "Recover Analog and Digital Data" (RADD) project rescues audio, video, and digital data from obsolete or decaying carriers. To make the technology shareable, she has also developed PROUD (Portable Recovery of Unique Data) and PRAVDA (Portably Reformat Audio and Video to Digital from Analog). ■

If you have preliminary questions for the speaker, please email them in advance to program coordinator Louise Robbins at louise.robby@sbcglobal.net by October 13, 2020.

Dorothea Salo is a Distinguished Faculty Associate in the Information School at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. As co-investigator for the Data Doubles project funded by the Institute for Museum and Library Services, Salo is helping investigate undergraduate students' perceptions of privacy relative to learning analytics practices. She holds an M.A. in Library

FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S DESK

BY SANDI HAASE

My heartfelt thanks go out to all of you who took the time to share your opinions and thoughts about your Association and its future in our summer survey. The completion rate continues to increase daily. I am pleased to share that we have a 45% participation rate. The Strategic Framework Survey Team and Board of Directors look forward to sharing the results and findings with all of you.

At this time of the year, I normally would share information about the Employee Benefits Fair. As with other activities, this year the Fair is going virtual. Offering this information virtually will create more access opportunities to connect with your company or campus resource. Open Enrollment is set for September 28 to October 23, 2020. Visit <https://tinyurl.com/y4oecb78> for more information.

It is with sadness that I share the passing of two active and long-term UWRA members, Phillip Certain and Chère Campbell Gibson. Phil, a professor emeritus in Chemistry, served on the board of directors and as UWRA president in 2014–15. Chère was a professor emerita in the School of Human Ecology, a UWRA charter member, past member of the board of directors and, most recently, chair of the UWRA Communications Committee. Our sympathies are extended to their families.

As we continue to navigate through our “new normal” world, I wish you awesome starts on Mondays; no obstacles on Tuesdays; no stress on Wednesdays, nor troubles on Thursdays; many, many smiles on Fridays; fun-filled Saturdays; and peaceful Sundays. Take care, my friends. ■

MEET A UWRA BOARD MEMBER

New on Board: Jane Dymond

When I moved to Madison in 2001, the first people who welcomed me were fellow knitters. That summer I attended Knitting Camp in Marshfield, where I met wonderful knitters from all over the United States. Sievers School of Fiber Arts on Washington Island is a great place for workshops and classes.

In 2010, I became a docent at the Chazen. We are so fortunate to have this fine art museum in Madison and I love spending time there. I also enjoy traveling to various art museums for special exhibits. Most recently I spent time at the Barnes Foundation and the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

After seventeen years of service, I retired from the Office of Quality Improvement (OQI) at UW–Madison in January 2018. Before joining OQI, I worked as the events coordinator in the Office of Human Resource Development. I also worked for the Vice Provost for Diversity and Climate. I joined UWRA in 2019. I am currently serving as a director on the Board and as chair of the Luncheon Committee. My two sons and their families (including four grandchildren) are my favorite companions. ■

NEW ACTIVITIES IN RETIREMENT

Political Organizing and Voter Education

BY MARY HAYWOOD METZ, PROFESSOR EMERITA

I was a professor in the Department of Educational Policy Studies, retiring in 2007. In 2008 I canvassed for Barack Obama. His campaign created neighborhood teams of volunteers with responsibility for their own wards. They were encouraged to stay together, working on local elections and projects, so that they would be ready for the next national election.

In August 2010, I became the lead recruiter of volunteers for my neighborhood team. I expected to give this effort three months of my life. Instead, a new calling had found me! We organized canvasses and phone banks, encouraging voters in our wards to vote and to vote Democratic. Our efforts were modestly successful, but Democrats still lost the state.

In the turmoil that started with Act 10, I became team leader. Politics in Wisconsin became essentially my year-round activity, as I led the “North Side Action Team” for 6 years, through 2016. We worked in the recalls of 2011 and early 2012. Thereafter, our numbers grew as we knocked on doors and made calls in our district in every election. We canvassed and visited food pantries to inform citizens about the Affordable Care Act. We attended, then became presenters, in regional Democratic Party team-building workshops.

Two years ago, I moved to Oakwood West, where public activities must be nonpartisan or bipartisan. I facilitate candidate forums and write memos for the Oakwood community that clarify procedures for voter registration and absentee voting. Independently, I participate in Democratic phonebanks organized by the team in our neighborhood. ■

RETIREMENT OPPORTUNITIES COMMITTEE

Call for Stories about Discovery in Retirement

BY MARY HAYWOOD METZ, FORMER COLUMN COORDINATOR, RETIREMENT OPPORTUNITIES

The Retirement Opportunities Committee (ROC) sponsors a series in The Sifter sharing retirees’ stories of discovering new, fulfilling pursuits in retirement. Do you have a story to share? We encourage you to do so. The series is intended to give us all insight into how retirees grow into new activities after retirement and reveal interesting opportunities available around town and beyond.

To write an article, consider how and where you found your way to something different from your work life. Did you return to an interest from your youth? Did you discover a nonprofit organization doing appealing work? Did you pick up a paint brush, journalist’s note pad, or poet’s pen? Did you travel and discover something new to explore?

Write a sentence on what you did with UW before retirement. Then, tell us: What do you do now? Where do you have the opportunity to do it and with whom? How did you begin—and how might others? What are the pleasures and drawbacks of your new pursuits?

Articles should be 250 words or less. Send either an idea for a story, or a draft story, to New Activities in Retirement column coordinator Bob Jokisch at bobjokisch@gmail.com. Once you have written your story, send it to Bob. He will get back to you promptly with questions or edits before it is submitted to the editor of The Sifter for inclusion in a future issue. ■

MEET A UWRA MEMBER

Astrophotography and World Travels

BY JURGEN PATAU

I was born in Berlin, Germany. Our family emigrated to Madison after my father accepted an appointment at UW–Madison. We left during the Berlin Airlift to join him, and Madison has been my home for most of my life.

I attended UW–Madison for my degrees in Physics. Those studies were interrupted by the military draft. (I watched the moon landing during a shift in the Pentagon). My interests then shifted to computer sciences and, after some course work, I moved into programming and information technology.

My career at UW–Madison included programming for the Dictionary of the Old Spanish Language, eight years at MACC in data management, and twenty-one years in Bascom Hall managing the Bascom office network for the Vice Chancellor for Administration. I retired from AIMS as an Emeritus Senior Information Processing Consultant.

My wife Jean and I met when I was a contract programmer and she was finishing her Ph.D. in German. We have been married for 36 years. Our house is lonelier since our 21½-year-old cat died recently. And, we miss the social interactions we had before the pandemic.

Nevertheless, I thoroughly enjoy my retirement. It allows me to sleep late—I am an unrepentant night owl. Most of my time is split among traveling, reading the books I had put aside while working, exercising my just-slightly green thumb, and amateur astronomy, especially astrophotography. It combines many of my interests, including telescopes, technology and computers, science, art, and photography. This is a lifelong work in progress. Two downsides are evening mosquitos and waiting for clear skies. In addition, I now have time to audit UW courses. I'm also the treasurer of the Madison Astronomical Society.

Retirement also allows us to travel more. With some trepidation, we booked a cruise from New York via Quebec City to London shortly after my retirement. We have been hooked ever since. The countries we have visited, the people we have met, and the peace we have felt on these floating hotels have been most rewarding. We have also taken some architectural-themed trips to Machu Picchu, Southeast Asia, and France. Our domestic travels include visiting friends and Jean's extended family across the country.

The pandemic has put several future trips on hold. We still want to go to Scotland (where my father studied and German cousins vacationed). My dream trips also include a cruise from Ushuaia, Argentina, to South Africa across the Southern Atlantic, and travel to the dark skies of Chile, New Zealand, or Australia to photograph the southern hemisphere's sky.

Several years ago, I was invited to join the UWRA's Committee on Financial Matters in Retirement. I have learned a lot and thoroughly enjoy being part of this group and am currently serving as the committee's co-chair. Earlier this year I participated on the UWRA Strategic Framework Workgroup.

We still love to wander on the Madison campus. My favorite places include Observatory Hill (the view north across Lake Mendota is always a special treat), the Memorial Union (especially when it's not too crowded), the Lakeshore Path from the Union to Picnic Point (always an enjoyable walk as long as the bugs leave you alone), and Memorial Library (a wonderful resource). ■

TRAVEL

Travel Committee Goes Virtual in 2020

BY TED COLLINS, MEMBER, TRAVEL COMMITTEE

The arrival of COVID-19 has eliminated our opportunity to physically travel to places of interest in Wisconsin, but we can still travel to sites virtually. While the experience may not be as satisfying as actually being there, we will spend far less time, less money, and less time on a bus. In the meantime, we'll feature Internet links to places visited on past UWRA trips or that we had planned to visit, offering greater insight into their history and place in Wisconsin's development.

Many of you may have watched "Around the Corner" on Wisconsin Public Television, hosted over the years by Milwaukee historian John Gurda and Emmy-winning actor John McGivern. They are engaging and knowledgeable guides to Wisconsin historical sites. This month we are featuring an "Around the Corner" trip to Wade House and the East Troy Electric Railroad, plus stories of Great Lakes ship building in Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin quarries in Bayfield (brownstone) and Lannon, and the Milwaukee North Point Light House. The video program is a nice complement to the trips UWRA has taken. We hope you enjoy, as John Gurda says, "why they are...the way they are."

REFLECTIONS

Just Wandering

BY MARY BARNARD RAY

Thank goodness we live in a part of the world that experiences seasonal changes! Given the inability to travel anywhere, I welcome having the change of scenery that October brings to our yard. Like many people in our neighborhood, we were working on our yard more than usual this past summer.

As a result, we have some new trees that will be turning and some new plants to bed down for the winter. We look forward to seeing how the leaves turn on our new "Orange Crush" crabapple tree. We hope that the transplanted hosta and daisies will survive the coming winter. Dennis will mutter about the squirrels digging holes in the new grass that he's carefully watered all summer. We will ask the neighborhood peony expert what new hybrids he is creating for next year. Feeling stuck at home, we seek out the changes we can find.

If this were 2019, we might be looking forward to staying home and having things seem the same. But this is 2020, and the charm of routine is wearing thin. Perhaps the need for variety has been planted deep in our genes. Restlessness, curiosity—if not our birthright, these are certainly our inheritance. Here's hoping those qualities prepare us for the changes in the way UWRA needs to operate and finally impel us toward all good things this October. ■

ELECTRONIC TECHNOLOGY

A Pandemic of Scams

BY RACHEL BAKER, MEMBER, ELECTRONIC TECHNOLOGY COMMITTEE

We're all spending more time at home and likely more time on the Internet. The scammers and hackers have noticed, and we are beset with scam phone calls and Internet malware. Here are some tips on how to manage the annoyance and avoid the threats.

SCAM CALLS are both annoying and dangerous. Caller ID may appear familiar. If you answer, you hear a recorded voice selling something, threatening you with an overdue bill or loan, awarding you a prize, or notifying you of a supposed computer virus.

What Not to Do Don't answer. If you do mistakenly answer, then hang up, do not engage the caller, do not press a button for more information or to be "removed from the call list," and above all NEVER give out personal information. Just answering the call informs the scammer that you are a live target, and any details the caller gleans will make your identity that much more valuable to other scammers.

What to Do Answer only known callers and let others go to voicemail. Check your service provider's website for call blocking and/or approved caller features. Get your number on the National Do Not Call registry at consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0108-national-do-not-call-registry. Update your mobile phone's contact list and configure privacy settings to ignore unknown callers.

MALWARE Your desktop and mobile device systems are also rich targets. Malicious code is introduced by social engineering, such as email messages that say: "Your Friend Tagged a Photo of You" or "Password Check Required Immediately" or "COVID-19 Awareness." Continue to be suspicious of email attachments from senders you don't know; delete those messages without clicking the links. Be aware that any app you download for "free" is not. Benign software earns its keep with targeted ads. Malicious software inserts programming into your device to collect personal information such as health data, passwords, and bank accounts. Sometimes malware is built into those ads or linked web sites. Resist "click bait" such as web ads screaming "You won't believe this!" If you click on the "bait," the linked site or video might download harmful malware to your computer or phone. A new tactic called "pharming" will trick you into clicking a link for an apparently trusted website, but the site you land on will be a mimic of the real one, designed to capture logins and passwords. Look carefully at URLs and email addresses to notice which are fake imitations of authentic sites.

WHO HAS MY DATA? Thousands of banks, businesses, and health care institutions have experienced data breaches as hackers have become more cunning. Stolen data is sold on the "dark web," a term describing Internet sites hidden from normal search engines and accessible only through specific software. Start with the premise that most of your personal identifiable information is already "out there." Prices can range from $1 for a Social Security number to $1000 per passport or medical record. Consider that all a thief requires to break into your bank accounts is your email address and password. A thief will test a stolen bank account or credit card with a small transaction and, if unnoticed, proceed to larger charges or withdrawal.

WHAT ELSE TO DO Use a unique, complex password for every account (it's easy with a password manager app) and choose two-factor authentication when you can. Lock your phone with a good passcode. Monitor your credit card and bank transactions regularly via your bank's websites. Never use a debit card for an online purchase. Use "virtual credit card" numbers if your financial institution offers them. ■

Let us hear from you! The UWRA Electronic Technology Committee is delighted to get your tech questions or ideas for topics. Please email us at UWRA.tech@gmail.com.

Safety Videos: Avoiding Scams during the Pandemic

BY CHRIS KLEINHENZ, UWRA PRESIDENT

On August 26, the Triad program of RSVP in Madison sponsored a virtual presentation on Covid-19 Scams and What You Need to Know. After providing an overview of the mission of the Better Business Bureau, Southwest regional director Tiffany Bernhard Schultz presented valuable information about a wide range of scams that have arisen during the pandemic, including fraudulent websites, offers of inferior masks and related products, government aid, false charities, fake phone calls and phishing emails, refunds for canceled events, “puppy” and “grandparent” scams, and more.

Schultz’s presentation is available for viewing on the Triad of Dane County’s YouTube channel: bit.ly/TriadsYoutube along with additional safety videos. ■

As Partners in Giving, We’re Stronger Together

BY JASON GOHLKE, UNIVERSITY COMMUNICATIONS

Retirement can offer a myriad of ways to give back. The Partners in Giving Campaign is one such opportunity. For the last forty-seven years, UW-Madison, UW Health, and State employees have raised millions of dollars through the campaign for a wide range of charitable causes. As a retiree, you can continue this Wisconsin tradition of generosity and service.

The 2020–21 campaign theme is “Stronger, Together.” Through giving, we each make a difference in our community and around the world. The more people who contribute, the greater our collective impact.

Retirees may contribute by credit card, check, or IRA distribution. (Ask your tax advisor about new CARES Act deductions for charitable giving.) Please visit giving.wi.gov for charity information and to donate online.

Request a paper booklet and pledge form at giving.wi.gov/about-us/giving-in-retirement/, or email carli.freidel@uwdc.org or call 608-246-5482. ■

1908 Epidemic Led to Creation of UW Student Health Service

BY SHEILA LEARY, SIFTER EDITOR

This spring, as the COVID-19 pandemic kept me at home, I dug into family history using online sources. My focus was on my great-grandfather, Dr. Edward Evans of La Crosse, who served on the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents from 1902 to 1913 and was president of the Medical Society of Wisconsin.

Not surprisingly, I found ample evidence of infectious diseases that physicians battled in that era. In 1908, epidemics of rabies, typhoid fever, and diphtheria swept through Wisconsin. Rampant cases of typhus on the University of Wisconsin campus in Madison led to the establishment of the University Student Health Service in 1910. At the time, only the University of California had such a service.

Some Madison physicians objected to the plan as “socialized medicine” that would diminish their clientele.

Dr. Evans vigorously championed a campus-based health service and persuaded fellow regents to vote in favor of it, asserting that, “when the University draws four thousand young people together in a community, it has a responsibility to help them maintain their health.” ■
